Ken Weber - United States (Stanford University)
Jessica Wong - Canada (Ontario Tech University; Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College)
James Young - Canada (Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College; University of Southern Denmark)

The CARL II cohort was selected from an impressive field of 41 early-career researchers who together are increasing the academic capacity of the chiropractic profession around the globe.

The Chiropractic Academy for Research Leadership was launched in 2017 with the aim of developing a global network of successful early-career chiropractic researchers under the mentorship of senior academics and the larger academic community. The original 13 CARL I Fellows and the 14 new CARL II Fellows will transition together at the program's next residential in Sydney Australia in 2020.

CARL is made possible by our partners who are passionate about growing the academic footprint of the chiropractic profession. Our CARL II partners include the European Centre for Chiropractic Research Excellence (ECCRE), the Australian Chiropractic Association (ACA), the Chiropractic Research Council (CRC), the Vancouver Foundation, Parker University, the World Federation of Chiropractic (WFC), Clinical Compass, the American Chiropractic Association (ACA), the Forward Thinking Chiropractic Alliance (FTCA), anonymous donors and the Nordic Institute for Chiropractic and Clinical Biomechanics (NIKKB) who provide administrative support.

For further information, the CARL Mentors are:

Jon Adams (Jon.Adams@uts.edu.au), Jan Hartvigsen (jhartvigsen@health.sdu.dk), Greg Kawchuk (greg.kawchuk@ualberta.ca)
